Highway stop leads to pot bust

DRUGS Two Ottawa men were arrested yesterday after police allegedly seized $250,000 worth of marijuana following a traffic stop on Highway 401, west of Prescott. Ontario Provincial Police stopped a 1999 Plymouth Voyager for speeding westbound, just before 9 a.m. yesterday. After a short investigation the driver and passenger were arrested for possession for the purpose of trafficking. The total weight of the quarter-million dollar seizure was just under 26 kilograms. The two men, 46 and 48, are in custody pending a bail hearing in Brockville court.

Tragedy at training

Carleton U says family's permission needed for memorial

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

Carleton University will be asking the family about the possibility of holding a campus memorial for a student and Ottawa reservist who died on the weekend when a truck flipped during a military exercise at CFB Petawawa.

"We will be in touch with the family at the appropriate time to discuss their wishes in terms of a memorial service at the university," said Dr. Roseann O'Reilly Runte, president of Carleton University.

A truck carrying 10 reservists rolled over during a training exercise at about 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, killing gunner Arielle Keyes-Oliver, a member of 30th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery — a reserve unit that's based in Ottawa. She was also a Carleton University student.

Lieutenant Com-

Counsellors help students cope

Grief counsellors were made available at Carleton University yesterday to support students who had known and studied alongside Keyes-Oliver.

Commander William Moore said three of the injured soldiers are being treated in an Ottawa hospital. The fourth was being treated in Pembroke. Moore said "they are in stable condition, and things are looking well."

Yesterday, National Defence Minister Peter Mackay issued a statement, calling her loss a tragedy.

"On behalf of the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Forces, I would like to offer our utmost sympathies to her family and friends during this very difficult time," the statement said. "Canada and the Canadian Forces have lost a bright, young and talented soldier."

O'Reilly Runte said in her statement that all Canadians would be touched by the news of Keyes-Oliver's death.

"Our thoughts and prayers go out to Arielle's family, her friends at Carleton, and to the other brave young men and women serving their country in Canada's military who were injured in the accident. These were dedicated young service men and women."

Four arrested after partygoers pelt police with bottles

A birthday bash for a 17-year-old boy spiralled out-of-control early yesterday when young partygoers at a community centre north of Gatineau began throwing bottles at police officers.

At around 12:45 a.m., four MRC des Collines Police vehicles and five Gatineau Police cruisers arrived at 5 Chemin de Manoir after the parents of the birthday boy called police to complain that the party was getting out of control.

Around 150 youth, between the ages of 16 and 20, had gathered at the community centre. Upon entering, the officers were confronted and surrounded by partygoers.

Two police officers were hit by thrown beer bottles, although not seriously injured.

MRC des Collines Staff Sgt. Daniel Pariseau said many of the youth had consumed alcohol.

Police could not identify who threw the bottles, but four teenagers were arrested and fined up to $200 for disturbing the peace.

Stabbing surprises man's roommate

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

On Saturday morning, as Michael Smelsky was leaving for work, he encountered a 21-year-old woman he had previously met while doing volunteer work with street people.

He said she wasn't supposed to be there, but he told her that if she found his roommate's cat, there might be a small reward in it for her.

According to Smelsky, that same woman is now charged in the stabbing of his roommate, Dwayne Negriff, 36.

"When I saw her I said, 'If you find the cat, you can bring it back to him and maybe he'll give you a couple of dollars,'" Smelsky said yesterday. "That's all I know. Somehow ... something happened there. I do not know what went on in the house."

Around 11:15 a.m. Saturday, police and paramedics were called to the basement apartment of a three-unit house at 342 Richelieu Ave., where Negriff — a dishwasher at the Lone Star Restaurant near the St. Laurent Mall — had suffered two stab wounds to his abdomen.

Paramedics stabilized Negriff at the scene and en-

Smelsky said the wounds to his roommate weren't deep, but were "serious enough."

The Ottawa Police have since arrested Chantal Trudel, 21, in relation to the stabbing. She faces charges of assault with a weapon, assault causing bodily harm, one count of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace and two counts of breach of probation.

Crash victim thrown 180 feet, survives

EJECTION A 40-year-old man survived after being ejected 180 feet in a car crash Saturday night.

The man remained in serious but stable condition in hospital yesterday after a Ford Mustang struck part of the Heron Road Bridge Saturday evening.

When the vehicle spun out, the driver was ejected through the rear window. Paramedics found the man 180 feet further down the road and treated him for injuries to the head, neck, back and extremities.

Debris from the crash was scattered over both sides of the bridge. Ottawa Police are investigating the cause of the collision.

Young dancers hit the spotlight

TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

Dozens of budding dancers were one step closer to making their dreams of sharing a stage with professional ballerinas a reality yesterday.

Sixty-five young ballet students from both sides of the Ottawa River auditioned for roles in the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's production of The Nutcracker at the National Arts Centre. The company has been staging this ballet roughly every other year since 1999, and auditioning local dancers to fill children's roles has become tradition.

Yesterday's audition, which sought 19 ballet dancers between the ages of nine and 12 to fill the roles of mice, angels and children, is a way to involve the community in the production, said ballet mistress Janice Messam.

"(Choosing 19 dancers out of 65) is as difficult as 150, because the talent is so good. It makes my job difficult."

Janice Messam, Royal Winnipeg Ballet mistress

"It's exciting for the kids to get the performance experience," she added.

Young dancers also get to experience first-hand how things work backstage.

"I was nervous," said 10-year-old Shelby Aldwinckle, who has been dancing since she was three years old, of her audition. "But I think I did good."

If the past is any indication, the Aylmer resident will do fine. Aldwinckle, who won the role of a mouse in last year's production, has her sights set on becoming a dancer with Cirque du Soleil or with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

Her classmate at the Studio de Danse Danielle, Chelsea-Ray Pariseau, has been dancing since 2003. She's excited about the opportunity to dance with members of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet. "I think I can learn a lot from them," said the nine-year-old Caselman resident.

Adds 12-year-old Kayla Iley: "I want to learn how to dance better and how to become a professional dancer."

The talent in the Ottawa area is enormous, said Messam. "(Choosing 19 from 65) is as difficult as 150 because the talent is so good. It makes my job difficult."

The dancers find out about the result of the audition by email early next week. The Nutcracker runs at the NAC from December 4 through 7.

Race a joint effort

Hospital run funds care for arthritis patients

TRACEY TONG

More than two years after their three children needed neonatal intensive care at the Ottawa Hospital, Amanda and Brian Archibald continue to give back — their way.

The Kanata residents ran the 10-kilometre and 5-kilometre events during yesterday's Rattle Me Bones race for the Ottawa Hospital Foundation. They raised cash for the run as a way to say thanks for what the hospital did for their triplets, Isobel, Maggie and Ewan, who were born 10 weeks premature.

More than 2,000 runners and walkers raised a record $100,000 for the Ottawa Hospital.

The race has generated almost $600,000 over 15 years for patient care, arthritis care and orthopedic research at the Ottawa Hospital, said Ingrid Gingras, a foundation spokeswoman.

The race also supports knee and hip replacement research, said race co-director and clinical manager at the Ottawa Hospital Jackie Mace.

"This is important because we have an aging population," she said. "Research into that is important because we want to decrease wait times."

Although the race attracted many of the area's avid runners, many people were there to support the cause, Gingras said.

"Athletes rely on their bones every day. By raising money through Rattle Me Bones, they're helping others who need help with their joints," she said.

"The continued growth of this event means stronger support for the Hospital, and in the end, our patients are the real winners of this race," said Kent Woodhall, race director and Director of Surgery at The Ottawa Hospital.

Old treasures found new life as residents all over the city took part in the event.

Although it's impossible to track how many people participate, Shames believes the event is quite popular.

Youth crime reports pile up

JUSTICE Just last week, at virtually the same time a 15-year-old was charged with murdering Brampton teenager Rajiv Dharamdial, government printing presses were gearing up to publish a major new report on preventing youth crime.

Commissioned last year by Premier Dalton McGuinty after 15-year-old Jordan Manners was shot dead in a Toronto school, the report examines the "root causes" of youth criminal behaviour. It represents months of work by Roy McMurtry, Ontario's former chief justice, and former Liberal cabinet minister Alvin Curling.

"I'm sure the premier is going to take the report seriously," McMurtry said in an interview. "But there will certainly be other people in government who might be quite happy to see it buried."

While McMurtry doesn't doubt the sincerity of McGuinty or his cabinet in wanting to do something about youth crime, a lowering of expectations might be prudent.

One by one, the reports have piled up. But in most cases, they have produced few perceptible changes, leaving some to question whether the government is truly committed to reforms.

The dirty d-word

Tory opposition to deficits may hurt nation: Experts

A growing number of economists and political scientists warn the federal government's own ideology may be the biggest obstacle to helping Canadians get through this financial crisis.

So far, that ideology means the Conservative government has chosen measures to assist the banks, without public guarantees the money would flow through to the real economy of consumers and businesses, according to McMaster University economist Atif Kubursi.

"They must not allow ideology to trump what is necessary now, and that is flexibility," says Kubursi. "My worry is their complete fetishism about deficits — it's a dirty word — is stopping them from seeing this is so serious they have no choice. It's necessary for the public good."

The Conservatives don't appear to have ruled out future deficits. After the federal government posted a $1.7 billion deficit for the month of August, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty said Friday he still expects a small surplus this year, but can't comment beyond that.

Kubursi and other economists argue the issue goes further to how the government should be spending money in this crisis.

Unless Ottawa changes its economic strategy, Kubursi fears Canada is heading into the "worst kind of recession when consumers stop spending It's a crisis of confidence and there's no light at the end of the tunnel."

There is partial praise for Ottawa's initiatives.

York University political economist Ricardo Grinpun says "it's completely responsible for the government to go to the assistance of the banks," as Prime Minister Stephen Harper's Conservatives have done.

Israel headed for election

Israel headed yesterday towards an early election likely to kill any remaining chances for a peace deal with the Palestinians this year, after ruling party leader Tzipi Livni dropped efforts to form a government.

"I notified the president that under the current circumstances, we should hold an election, without delay," Livni said after meeting Shimon Peres, Israel's head of state.

Livni, head of the centrist Kadima party, said prospective political part-

"There are prices others are ready to pay, but I'm not willing to do so at the expense of the country and its people, just to be prime minister."

Tzipi Livni

ners had made "impossible demands" in weeks of bargaining, in which the ultra-Orthodox Shas faction had sought a steep boost in social welfare spending.

"There are prices that can be paid. There are prices others are ready to pay, but I'm not willing to do so at the expense of the country and its people, just to be prime minister," Livni said in a broadcast.

Israeli media said Livni's centrist Kadima party would table a bill to dissolve Parliament today, and set a new election date, when lawmakers convene after a long summer recess, but the motion would not necessarily come to an immediate vote.

Most opinion polls have predicted the right-wing party of former Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, an opponent of wide-ranging territorial compromise, would win the ballot.

Negotiations for a framework deal on Palestinian statehood have so far shown few signs of progress — Israeli settlement expansion and the future of Jerusalem are key stumbling blocks. And with Israel's political scene in turmoil, there appeared to be little chance of an agreement. REUTERS

Opera Night in Canada?

HineSight

Anne Hines

Break out the Styrofoam fingers and face paint. Grab a seat at your local pub. It's time to celebrate the start of hockey season. Unless, of course, you live in Toronto.

Fellow Torontonians, I want to address a serious and crushing problem that's caused longstanding heartbreak in our city. I don't mean gun violence or not being able to get the U.S. Super Bowl ads. Those are bad. I'm speaking of the fact that it's Week 4 and once again our team is playing like visually-impaired garden slugs.

I, for one, have had it with jokes like, "Hear about the guy who was afraid he'd contracted listeriosis after kissing the Stanley Cup? Fortunately, he realized nothing Maple Leaf had touched it in 41 years."

There's a solution. We'll abandon all forms of hockey and take up the arts.

I didn't say it was a great solution.

Consider the benefits. They hardly ever hold ballet performances in drafty arenas at 5 a.m. And the symphony will never expect you to shell out $180 for a jersey just because it's got the name of the first violinist on it.

Here are some tips to get you started:

Modern art: Do not wander around the gallery saying loudly, "My two-year-old paints as well as that." This is disrespectful. And not just to two year olds.

An artist friend insists that to appreciate modern art, we must imagine what the artist was feeling when they were creating. I tried this and thought, "Perhaps he had a very bad experience ... with a radish," and, "maybe her medication hadn't kicked in yet."

On a recent visit, my daughter, Jade, and I saw an amazing piece of art. A single black line on a blank wall. Obviously representing the stark isolation of modern life. We stood admiring the work right up until a janitor arrived with Windex to, "Clean that ink mark off the wall." We decided to call this performance art.

Theatre: Don't say, "I'm gonna see a play." Intone, "I'm attending the theatre." If you pronounce it "Th-EE-a-tuh" it's even better. Avoid experimental plays. I saw Hamlet performed as a one-man show. It got very confusing when the actor playing all the parts had to keep jumping up and stabbing himself.

So, goodbye Leafs. We're out. Done. Finito. We're over hockey. It's Opera Night In Canada now. Unless, of course, they win this week.

Invest in future of Canadian children

Wendy Cukier

Something fell off the radar screen in the last election: Our children.

Discussions of national child-care policy and early childhood education mostly evaporated when the markets crashed. But in tough times, support for young families is one of the best long-term investments Canada can make. (And I'm not talking about a token, souped up "baby bonus").

Companies understand their ability to attract and retain workers, particularly young women, depends on support for working parents. More than 65 per cent of women with children under the age of five work outside the home, fuelling an acute need for quality options.

Last week, an Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) study reminded us that the gap between rich and poor in Canada has increased dramatically over the last 10 years. Hardest hit? Young people and families with children. Canada is now below average among high-income countries in its social investments.

Investments in early childhood education and child care fuel economic and social development. They allow parents to choose to enter the labour force and improve their prospects. Many become trapped in a cycle of poverty because, quite simply, they cannot afford to work outside of the home. And we can also improve the prospects of children for later success also reducing social costs, particularly when children most at risk are targeted. The quality of life in Canada has long been a source of competitive advantage and we cannot allow it to be further eroded.

Many ask "Can we can afford the investment?"

The better question, according to economists Gordon Cleveland and Michael Krashinsky, is "can we afford not?" Their cost/benefit analysis of child care concluded that we spend far less on young children than on older children, despite evidence that "the education of young children has greater payoff than dollars spent on the same children when they are older."

Of course, we must not penalize parents who choose to stay home with their children, often at great cost (which, at least for me, was tougher than working for pay). And we need to find ways to direct resources to the people who need them most. But this should not distract us from action.

The issues should be burning concerns, not just to parents of young children or advocates, but to political and business leaders.

Wendy Cukier is the associate dean of the Ted Rogers School of Management at Ryerson University, Canada's largest undergraduate business school and the founder of Ryerson's Diversity Institute.

Speak up for the environment

ScienceMatters

David Suzuki & Dr. Faisal Moola

We've just had our federal election and, if nothing else, the environment did become an issue. Unfortunately, global warming and other environmental issues were overshadowed by an economic crisis and, no doubt, by the fear people have of the word tax, so much so that they didn't notice the word cuts was also in there.

Now it's up to all of us to make sure the environment doesn't get lost in all the noise about the economy. The new government has some important choices to make in the near future.

Although a few nations are putting plans to combat global warming on the back burner while they weather the economic crisis, many more are holding fast, realizing that protecting the environment makes good economic sense. The European Union has stated that it is committed to meeting emissions targets even as some Eastern European countries are getting cold feet.

Here in Canada, several provinces, including B.C. and Ontario, have taken the lead in establishing plans to combat global warming and to shift to a sustainable economy. But more needs to be done, especially at the federal level.

Continuing to rely on projects such as the Alberta tar sands to keep our economy afloat is a short-term strategy with long-term negative consequences for both the environment and the economy. Sure, we'll be able to pull in some money while the oil lasts, or while it is economically feasible to extract, or until the rest of the world has switched to renewable sources of energy, but then what?

If we start now to shift from reliance on dirty and non-renewable sources of energy to renewable sources, and if we put more effort into conserving energy, we will benefit in so many ways.

Other countries have proven this, and continue to prove it. Canadians may have elected a government that differs little from the one we had before the election — and they may have even shown, through the votes they did cast and through the disappointing apathy that many demonstrated, that it was difficult to connect with the parties that made the environment the top priority. But we shouldn't conclude that the results of the election mean that the window of opportunity for government action on the environment has slammed shut.

A minority government such as the one we just elected has an even greater responsibility to listen to all our voices. We just have to speak loudly enough to be heard.

The Steelers' Troy Polamalu tries to tackle Giants running back Derrick Ward during New York's 21-14 win yesterday.

Giants D wears down Steelers

Giants 21, Steelers 14

Eli Manning threw for 199 yards and a touchdown on 19-of-32 passing, but the story of the game was New York's defence, which had five sacks, four interceptions, forced two fumbles and recorded a safety to lead the Giants in a 21-14 victory over the Steelers in what some called a Super Bowl preview. Brandon Jacobs led the way on the ground with 47 yards for the Giants (6-1), who have won two straight contests following their lone setback to the Browns.

CHARGERS 37, SAINTS 32

A trans-Atlantic trip was just what Drew Brees and the New Orleans Saints needed to get their season back on track. Brees went 30-for-41 for 339 yards and three touchdowns against the Saints to a 37-32 win over San Diego at Wembley Stadium in London, dropping the Chargers to 3-5.

PATRIOTS 23, RAMS 16

Kevin Faulk rushed for 60 yards on 13 carries and his 15-yard touchdown reception late in the fourth quarter was the difference as New England topped St. Louis, 23-16, at Gillette Stadium. Matt Cassel completed 21-of-33 passes for a career-high 267 yards but was intercepted twice for the Patriots (5-2), who have won three of four. Coupled with Buffalo's loss to Miami, the Pats and Bills are now tied atop the AFC East.

Watch out fraudsters

OddJobs

Diane Peters

“I’ve got a dead body! I’ve got a dead body!” Jennifer Ford-Smith cried out one day at work.

Her colleagues probably thought she had lost it. But Ford-Smith was used to people not quite getting her passion for sniffing out crime.

The dead body — found inside a home bought with a mortgage through the lending company she worked for — meant that the police would get involved with her investigation into the defaulted payments.

As a fraud examiner for a mortgage company, she investigates loans gone awry to see what went wrong (and maybe even get some of the money back) and trains staff to sniff out scams at the application stage.

Ford-Smith’s crime sense started young: She adored math puzzles and mystery books and was able to tell if someone was lying.

After studying international relations, she signed on with a temp agency that sent her to a bank’s mortgage division to review applications.

She found one or two frauds a day. She flagged everything from faked government assessments to lies about income. Her colleagues in the same department didn’t find nearly so many questionable applications.

“You’re good at this,” her boss said.

Just two weeks later, the bank hired her permanently and moved her to the bank’s audit department where she reviewed mortgage documents and did investigations. A few years later, a newly launched mortgage company hired her to start a fraud and audit department.

“When a mortgage company is new to the market, the word gets out amongst the criminal set, and they often try to attack it right at the beginning, when the controls are weak,” says Ford-

Smith.

She keeps on top of fraud trends — which she shares with staff at her company — by reading and talking to others in the industry, including the police.

Her biggest investigation surrounded the home in Montreal where the dead body was found. A biker gang was involved, as was cocaine, seeds for a grow op, human trafficking and other crimes.

Ford-Smith spent months in an office with a lawyer combing through documents to figure out what went on. The fraud ended up totalling $3 million and is currently before the courts.

Ford-Smith, now 27, recently moved to another job, setting up yet another fraud and audit department at a new lender. About eighteen months ago, she completed her certification through the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners in Texas. She’s now working certification through the Association of Certified Anti-Money Laundering Specialists of Miami.

Luxury hotels for small biz

RAFAEL BRUSLOW
for Metro Canada

A personal chauffeur, a team of relaxation specialists, golf courses accessible from the lobby and a rentable pet companion are just some of the unique amenities Canada's top hotels are offering to attract the amenity-conscious small business traveller.

Hotels.ca recently compiled a list of Canada's top hotels for the small business traveller and found when it comes to distinctive services, travellers have some extraordinary choices.

"There are a lot of great hotels across Canada and they're all really cutting edge," said Anita Chau, senior marketing manager for Hotels.ca.

Chau says the key to fulfilling small business needs is offering 24-hour access to business technologies like wireless Internet, convenient access to food and personal amenities and great business support for things like presentations and meetings. Most hotels do offer those things but some go a few steps farther.

The W Montreal hotel offers a complimentary ride in an Acura SUV complete with personal driver to and from the airport as well as a team of "meeting specialists" that can swing by your business meeting to create a relaxing and fun break involving karaoke, oxygen bars or even yoga classes.

In Calgary, the Sheraton Suites Calgary Eau Claire offers perhaps one of the most unique amenities by letting the idea of comfort go to the dogs — or dog, to be more exact. Patrons feeling lonely or just missing their own pets can schedule quality time with Jake, a Golden Retriever who has his own doghouse in the hotel lobby, his own business cards and e-mail address. Jake is available to accompany guests on walks to the park and takes appointments online or through his own appointment book outside his lavish canine home in the lobby.

"Coming home to animals is nice so that's a feeling the hotel wants to instill back into the hotel experience," Chau said.

The Fairmont Vancouver Airport offers hotel check-in right outside the baggage carousels and a round-the-clock electronic monitoring service that automatically notifies staff when anything needs to be replaced in the room.

The Brookstreet Hotel in Ottawa lets business travellers network and make deals in style or just take a break on one of two European PGA-approved short golf courses attached to the hotel.

In Toronto, the Hazelton Hotel offers five-star luxury complete with fully equipped business centres on every floor that include round-the-clock tech support.

Java brewed with integrity

Doi Chaang Coffee couples quality with humanitarian efforts

Small Business

BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Canada

B.C.-based Doi Chaang Coffee doesn't want to be known for its humanitarian practices, though it has them. It doesn't want praise for helping a poverty-stricken area of Thailand, though it did. If you're going to buy Doi Chaang Coffee, it wants it to be for one reason: Quality.

"They do not wish to have charity or donations, but they want to be known for the quality of their coffee and they want their coffee to be single-originated, not blended with other coffee," says John Darch, founder of the Thai-Canadian company.

It is an 800-family farming co-operative based in northwest Thailand's Doi Chaang (which translates to "Elephant Mountain") village. After decades of developing businesses in Thailand, Darch took his admiration of the village's self-sufficiency and put his knowledge of the area to work in a rare overseas partnership.

Teaming up with the coffee cultivators in Doi Chaang, Darch decided to bring the high-quality coffee to Canada to sell in a fair trade-rivalling financial agreement with the farmers. While Doi Chaang in Canada finances farming of the coffee, the farmers retain control of all Thai-based operations.

Darch says repaying the Thai people for how they helped him in his business past motivates his altruistic pursuits. "It's a good feeling when I can honestly say we are representing the farmers and that we're not doing this as a charity — it's a commercial operation. Our goal is to ensure a fair reward goes back through to the farmers."

Doi Chaang coffee wants to "ensure a fair reward goes back through to the farmers" in Thailand.

Doi Chaang has a good honour system, commits to importing certain amounts of coffee and pre-pays for the product before it is delivered from Thailand, according to Darch. However, he says reaching the company's goal is inhibited by the challenge of informing Canadians about its practices.

"As long as we present (the coffee) with integrity and clarity and total transparency, (the Doi Chaang farmers) are very comfortable with that. When (the public) understands the compelling story behind it in terms of quality and structure, we gain their support."

FBI joins search for nephew

Boy, 7, missing since bodies of Jennifer Hudson's mom, brother found

Chicago police asked the FBI to help find the missing 7-year-old nephew of Academy Award-winning actress Jennifer Hudson after her mother and brother were found shot to death a day earlier.

Julian King has been missing since Friday when Hudson's mother, Darnell Donerson, 57, and brother Jason Hudson, 29, were found dead in Donerson's south side Chicago home. "Let my baby go," Hudson's sister Julia told reporters. She appeared at a news conference along with the boy's father, Greg King.

Chicago police spokesman Daniel O'Brien said the FBI had been asked to help in the search in case the boy had been taken across state lines, in violation of federal kidnap laws.

O'Brien declined to confirm various media reports that police had taken William Balfour into custody as a suspect in the double homicide investigation. Balfour, 27, had a relationship with Hudson's sister Julia but is not the father of the missing boy. Balfour's mother said earlier her son and Julia were estranged and that he had nothing to do with the slayings.

The Illinois Department of Corrections website lists Balfour as having been convicted of attempted murder, car theft and vehicular hijacking. He was released from prison in 2006.

O'Brien said more than one person had been questioned but that no one had been charged with a crime. He did not release any names. On Friday, police spokeswoman Monique Bond said of the murders, "It appears to be domestic related."

Hudson gained fame in 2005 as a contestant on the No. 1-rated U.S. television show American Idol. She was one of 12 finalists in the third season but was voted off the talent show.

Her booming voice and popularity kept her touring in live shows and she eventually earned the role of Effie White in the 2006 film version of the stage musical Dreamgirls.

LIVING IN THE PAST: I don't think it's just Mad Men that's got people jonesing for the stylistically superior or early '60s, but here's the latest bit of evidence that we've started hitting the pre-Meet The Beatles era hard.

It's an article of cultural and political conventional wisdom that Richard Nixon lost the 1960 election with the televised debate that aired on September 26, 1960, in which he appeared nervous and haggard next to the poised, tanned JFK. Most recollections of that debate insist that radio listeners thought Nixon won the debate, but that TV viewers saw it differently, and that this was not only a watershed moment for the Kennedy campaign, but TV's decisive blow to radio as the dominant media.

In a piece in the Los Angeles Times, Mary McNamara, compares that debate to the third and final presidential debate between Barack Obama and John McCain. "Obama looked so calm, cool and collected you half expected him to break into the opening strains of Summer Wind," she writes, with the sort of partisan fervor that's set the tone for this campaign. "Meanwhile, McCain spluttered, blinked and twitched, possessed by a cacophony of physical tics that were, by turns, frightening and laughable."

Still, McNamara has to admit that, in the hours after the debate, pundits and blogs were conceding that McCain did well, but polls taken in the subsequent week gave Obama the victory. McNamara's point is Obama is the more telegenic candidate — "He is tall and slim, which means he looks good in a suit. He is one of the few heterosexual American men who can appear comfortable while sitting on a stool. He has the wide, bright smile we demand of our movie stars."

It might be a fair assessment, but it still reads like it was written with hearts dotting the I's, and "Mary Obama, Mrs. Mary Obama, Mrs. Barack Obama" in the margins. There has been a lot of this sort of thing from journalists this year.

McNamara's thesis is that television is still the deciding medium in this race, exercising more palpable influence than the Internet, and that Obama's team has exploited this well. There is, of course, the persistent taint to JFK's 1960 victory that the agonizingly close race was won by votes bought by his father and rigging by the Chicago Democratic machine led by Mayor Richard Daley. With the promise of another close race, and rumours of rigging abounding already, it looks like the U.S. should brace itself for déjà vu all over again.

Bond tales peek inside the mind of the legend

BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Canada

He's got ladies, liquor and a licence to kill.

His name's Bond ... James Bond, that is, and his meticulous detection and personal drive are probed in Quantum of Solace: The Complete James Bond Short Stories by Ian Fleming. The nine-part anthology is the first in which Fleming's bibliography of Bond shorts is collected, including From a View to a Kill, Octopussy and the title story, Quantum of Solace.

Unlike their film adaptations, the stories within divulge far more of Bond's personal life and beliefs

James Bond Book to Film Adaptations:

- Starring Sean Connery — 1962: No. 1963: From Russia with Love, 1964: Goldfinger; 1965: Thunderball; 1967: You Only Live Twice; 1971: Diamonds Are Forever Sean Connery
- Starring George Lazenby — 1969: On Her Majesty's Secret Service
- Starring Roger Moore — 1973: Live and Let Die; 1974: The Man with the Golden Gun; 1977: The Spy Who Loved Me; 1979: Moonraker; 1981: For Your Eyes Only; 1983: Octopussy; 1985: A View to a Kill
- Starring Timothy Dalton — 1987: The Living Daylights; 1989: Licence to Kill
- Starring Pierce Brosnan — 1995: GoldenEye; 1997: Tomorrow Never Dies; 1999: The World Is Not Enough; 2002: Die Another Day
- Starring Daniel Craig — 2006: Casino Royale; 2008: Quantum of Solace

Daniel Craig stars as superspy James Bond in the movie Quantum of Solace.

and aid in justifying his actions and purpose as a character. From his introspective musings on what type of beverage is suitable to order at a restaurant in From a View to a Kill to his mental transition from covert to critical during periods of operative inactivity in The Property of a Lady, the stories lay bare Bond's thoughts.

But, that's not to say the stories aren't as loaded as a golden gun with action and adrenaline (both in and out of the bedroom). Fleming dodges the modern excess of violent spectacle by building up relationships and vicious run-ins in detail. The short stories act as a roadmap from which the cinematic adaptations draw, picking up pieces from the cutting room floor to generate a different, literary Bond prototype.

The collection is not suited for everyone, as it replaces quick on-screen cuts with concentrated biography fiction and more elaborate explanation. But for those intrigued by the narrative behind the legend, this account's for your eyes only.

The martyr in the warrior

BookPicks

Heroes & Villains

Author: Frank McLynn
Publisher: BBC Books
Price: $39.95 (Hardcover)

What makes a warrior? Frank McLynn explores this question in Heroes & Villains: Inside the Minds of the Greatest Warriors in History. McLynn observes six historical figures — including Richard the Lionheart and Napoleon — attributing them celebrity-like status in his historical account. Finally, McLynn concludes with a statement on the mind of a warrior, observing the roles of murder, crime and the martyr mindset in one's life.

Goldengrove

Author: Francine Prose
Publisher: Harper Perennial
Price: $19.95 (Paperback)

Death tends to offer a new perspective on life. But when 13-year-old Nico's talented sister Margaret drowns, her attempt at finding her own way is cluttered by adolescence and reconciliation processes of loved ones. Nico gravitates toward Aaron, Margaret's boyfriend prior to her demise. Author Prose, president of the PEN American Center, tells the dark story of Goldengrove against a contrasting summer landscape.

The Pages

Author: Murray Bail
Publisher: Harvill Secker
Price: $32.00 (Hardcover)

From the famed Australian author of Eucalyptus comes the writer's fourth novel, philosophy-centric The Pages. Bail introduces Wesley Antill, a philosopher in his own right. After his mother and father die, leaving behind a sheep farm, he takes to meticulously developing his own philosophy. Bail builds each character's connection to Wesley before unfettering his work in a reflective conclusion.

Hudgens doesn't regret nude pics

CELEBRITY High School Musical star Vanessa Hudgens doesn't regret the world seeing naked images of her, despite it leaving her "traumatized," imdb.com reports.

Hudgens was at the centre of controversy when the full-frontal shots, which she reportedly took for her boyfriend Zac Efron, appeared on the Internet. But despite the pictures' effect on her squeakyclean reputation, Hudgens insists she is a great believer in fate.

"I think that everything happens for a reason, and I wouldn't take back anything that I've done," she says. "I don't like talking about it because it was something that was meant to be private, and I'd still like to keep it as private as I can."

Damon wants daughters grounded

PARENTING Actor Matt Damon is determined his three daughters won't be spoiled by a lavish lifestyle, and plans to take them with him as he carries out charitable work in impoverished parts of the world, imdb.com reports.

The star has become well-known for his philanthropic efforts in Africa and around the world. And he wants Isabella, two, two-month-old Gia and step-daughter Alexia, 10, to follow in his footsteps.

"It's a hard thing to explain to a kid. And it is also unbelievable the way other kids are forced to live," he says. "The way you have to parent them is to show them the world. Explaining the world can only go so far. You can read about devastation every morning ... but when you actually go there and see it, you realize this isn't something you can turn the page on."

Parents' devotion is Piven's model

RELATIONSHIPS Actor Jeremy Piven has put off marriage until he's convinced he can compete with his parents' long-lasting union, because he's too traditional not to take his own wedding vows seriously, imdb.com reports.

The Entourage star has been plagued with the "playboy" title since his role as hot-headed Hollywood agent Ari Gold in the hit TV show made him a regular tabloid fixture.

But Piven insists being raised with strong family ties has made him think more seriously about marriage.

"My parents were devoted to one another. That's my upbringing. That's my reference for marriage. So when I marry, I want it to be for a long time," he tells the New York Post.

Piven denies he's been involved with the endless lists of starlets he's been linked to in the press. "If I did all they write that I do, I wouldn't have any strength left," he says.

Becks and Posh's doc deal

DOCUMENTARY David Beckham and his former Spice Girl wife Victoria are set for a $16-million US payday if his planned move to Italy goes ahead — they will make a film of their new life, imdb.com reports.

The soccer player is lining up a move from Los Angeles to Europe to play on loan for AC Milan football club in January. If the transfer goes ahead, the celebrity couple will be offered the chance to make a documentary about their showbiz lifestyle.

Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, who owns AC Milan, is said to be planning to offer the Beckhams $16 million for the film. Victoria made a similar documentary, entitled Victoria Beckham: Coming to America, covering their move to America when Beckham signed with the L.A. Galaxy in July 2007.

"It will be similar in format to the U.S. documentary last year, but this time the budget is absolutely huge. It will be a really polished, professional production," a source tells Britain's Daily Mirror. "With Silvio 100 per cent behind the project, as part of his vision to expand the AC Milan brand, it really will be no holds barred."

Paparazzi scare Biel

FAME Actress Jessica Biel finds dealing with the paparazzi the hardest part of the celebrity lifestyle, insisting the ever-present photographers often drive her to tears, imdb.com reports.

Biel found herself a major media target when she began dating pop star Justin Timberlake in 2007.

"It's hard. The hardest part of this whole wonderful, bizarre lifestyle and profession," she tells Britain's Marie Claire magazine.

"You have to be Zen about it, because it can make you crazy. There are times when I have been followed by men with giant cameras in giant SUVs all day long. It scares ... me and I literally come home and emotionally erupt and cry it out and sit on the floor and think, 'Do I really want this?'"

Joe's take on celebrities

by Joe O'Neill

His breakout Hollywood movie saw him play a sensitive but troubled über-genius with a social conscience, and now Good Matt Damon wants you all to know just how caring he really is.

He swears his daughters won't become spoiled little celebspawn, indulging their every materialistic whim while remaining blissfully aware of the suffering in the world.

What about my suffering, Damon, if I'm still writing this column in 16 years and your girls aren't providing fodder for me?

Matt says he's not just going to tell his daughters about the plight of the less fortunate, but will actually show them the suffering.

Hopefully, this will include personally introducing them to everyone who paid money to see The Legend of Bagger Vance.

How much fun is it going to be for the girls?

Isabella's going to want a piñata for her birthday party, but instead Damon will make her and the other kids work on a water-filtration prototype.

Gia's going to get a trip to Burundi for her high school graduation present.

Alexia will have to go all Jason Bourne and liberate child labourers from a toy factory in China.

Perhaps it hasn't occurred to Mr. Smartguy Harvard Dropout that kids are genetically programmed to defy their parents by embracing lifestyles and concerns opposite to the ones you try to foster.

If Damon wants to raise socially conscious, well-grounded daughters, he should just invite his old buddy Ben Affleck over as often as possible and say, "Ben, just be yourself."

HOW TO PLAY: Digits 1 through 9 will appear once in each zone — one zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine zones in the puzzle. Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same zone, row across or column down the entire puzzle.

Recipe of the day

Baked Chicken with Tomatoes

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 egg
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) salt
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) toasted Brazil nuts or blanched almonds, finely chopped
- 1/3 cup (75 mL) wheat germ
- 4 boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 2 tbsp (25 mL) olive oil
- 2 cups (500 mL) grape or cherry tomatoes, halved
- 1 tsp (5 mL) dried basil

METHOD:

1. Preheat oven to 425°F (220°C). Coat a baking sheet with cooking spray.
2. Place egg and salt in a shallow dish and whisk with 1 tbsp (15 mL) water. In another shallow dish, combine nuts and wheat germ. Dip chicken breasts into egg and then nut mixture. Place on the baking sheet and coat with cooking spray. Bake, turning once, for 15 to 20 minutes (depending on thickness) or until cooked through and crispy.

3. Meanwhile, heat oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. Add tomatoes and basil and cook until just browned, 3 minutes. Serve with chicken.

LEO
JULY 23-AUG 23
Running wild helps you to avoid monotony. Warn someone about a terrible struggle. A health problem results from lack of motivation.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21-FEB 18
Someone gives you the benefit of a doubt. A foolish friend is rebellious about responsibility. A peace lover comes to the rescue.

VIRGO
AUG 24-SEPT 22
An executive's etiquette needs adjustment. Dangle enticing prospects before an asinine associate. Go beyond duty in order to walk away with dignity.

PISCES
FEB 19-MARCH 20
A hostile companion loses control. Confidence makes the difference in your objective. Politics creates quarrels between friends.
